

TWO WORKERS QUIT BILLY SUNDAY'S FORCES

Bentley Ackley, Pianist and Secretary, and Rev. E. N. Emmett Sever Connections.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 15.—Bentley Ackley, who became widely known as Billy Sunday's right-hand man, secretary and pianist, in the recent revival here, has resigned from the Sunday forces. He gave as his reason that other members of the organization, less deserving than he, received vast profits, in one case aggregating $20,000 from the writing and publication of hymns, the sale of hymn books and the disposition of other privileges connected with the revivals. Though it is not known whether or not the liquor interests had anything to do with Mr. Ackley's resignation, it is a fact that Walter Fenley, third vice president of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' association, has been a close friend of the former Sunday pianist for some time, and that he not only was a visitor at the Sunday party's residence during the campaign here but also was once the personal guest of Mr. Ackley in Paterson, N. J.

"Was Too Independent." Immediately after the announcement of Ackley's resignation it was learned that the Rev. E. N. Emmett, Sunday's confidential advance agent, had also severed his connection with the evangelists' entourage. Emmett, a young man, it was said, was summarily released by Sunday's son, George, at the close of the Paterson campaign, the grounds given then that "he was too independent."

From certain other sources it was learned that Ackley and Emmett may not be the only Sunday paid workers to be taken away from the organization, and it is almost a certainty that the departure of these two who were highly important cogs in the evangelistic machine, will mean the eventual disruption of the entire party. Since his return from a western trip following the revival in Paterson, Ackley has been much in the company of Fenley.

Plums Went to Others. Interesting disclosures are promised by Ackley concerning the inside workings of the Billy Sunday system, Ackley declares that many things he had to put up with during the eight years he served as pianist and secretary, "not on my nerves." But his worst part lies in the way the financial concessions of the campaign were distributed.

Ackley names Homer A. Rodeheaver, choirmaster, and Fred Selbert, tabernacle caretaker, as being the recipients of all the plums.

ASKS $3,000 ALLEGING COUPLE SLANDERED HER Aurilla E. Estelle Brings Suit for Damages Against John G. and Anna O'Brien.

Suit for $3,000 for alleged slander was brought by Aurilla E. Estelle against John G. O'Brien and Anna M. O'Brien in the superior court Tuesday morning. The plaintiff charges that during 1914 and 1915 the defendants conspired to injure her good name and her credit by circulating untrue stories. She alleges also that the defendants caused a letter to be written in which it was declared that she had acted in an unbecoming manner and was a person to be shunned.

The plaintiff recently brought suit in the justice court against an optician in which she sought to recover $25 damages on the grounds that she had been forced to retain an unsatisfactory glass eye. She secured $20 damages and the case is now in the circuit court on appeal.

A family quarrel which ended in the arrest of Lewis Felton, 519 E. Ohio st., charged with assault and battery by his aged step-father, William B. Wallis, took place in the Wallis home on Ohio st. Monday night. Wallis, who is an old soldier, declared in city court Tuesday morning that his step-son threw an empty glass at him, which struck him on the knee.

TAKE UP ARGUMENTS IN THE MISCHKE CASE

Hearing of Salacious Testimony in Trial of Michigan Men Comes to Close Tuesday Forenoon.

Arguments were taken up shortly before noon Tuesday in the case of the state against John Mischke and Fred Ziemann charged with a statutory offense. The case went to trial last Thursday with Wilhelmina Mischke, a sister-in-law of John Mischke's, as complaining witness. It will go to the jury this evening. The testimony in the case has been of such a nature as to make it necessary to bar women spectators from the court room. The defendants, it is alleged, came from St. Joseph, Mich., to visit Mrs. Mischke at her home. The charge is that, while there, they assaulted her during the absence of her husband and son. The defense has sought to show that injuries which she received at the time of the alleged assault, were injuries sustained when she fell during a period of drunkenness. The prosecution has been conducted by Judge Farabaugh and Pros. Montgomery. The defendants are represented by James O'Hara of St. Joseph, and by Barry Scanlon of this city.

German Atmosphere of Hatred By Frederick Warner

BERLIN, June 14.—We have been living in an atmosphere of hatred ever since the day in September last year when the Kaiser's legions were suddenly stopped in their triumphant march against Paris and with every day this hatred which Germans feel against the entire civilized world increases in intensity.

Successfully it has been directed east and west, north and south from one nation to another, changing its object but never abating. Strange enough there has never been any hatred here against France, nor even against Belgium, though that small country is undoubtedly responsible for the dreadful position in which Germany undeniably finds herself at the present moment when she, as the Kaiser said in Galicia last month, is fighting the whole world practically single handed.

At first German hatred was directed against Russia, which proved herself a far more dangerous enemy than anybody had supposed, but very soon England was made the target of this hatred, which was then turned against America, to the more mentioning of which power makes a German seer at the present moment.

In the days which preceded the temporary resignation of the Salandra cabinet, I had a talk with a very prominent member of the "Great General Staff" who was on a short visit to Berlin. Quite naturally we could not avoid the subject of Italy's decision, then hanging in the balance. I asked the officer what he thought of the situation and he said: "I shall never forget the expression of deadly hatred which came into his face. He turned pale with fury, as he said: 'Of course we have long known that Italy would turn against us, when she had been bribed with a billion dollars of English gold and thought that Austria had been weakened. But she has made a mistake which she can never make again. When we cross the frontier of Italy we shall pay our way to Rome with the ruins of Italian cities, towns and villages. The cries of women and children shall be heard all over the country as a protest to the treacherous government from all the defenseless people its treachery ruined. It will be the bloodiest war in human history. We have been accused of brutality in Belgium, but even the lies of our enemies against us shall be surpassed by what we shall actually do in Italy.'"

"It will not be war as we have carried on war against Germany's other enemies, but a betrayed nation's merciless war of extermination against the Judas among the great powers."

A Swedish journalist returning home via Berlin after an extensive tour through Alsace and Lorraine tells me in a state of great anxiety because a French invasion is feared. Certain districts near the French frontier have already been evacuated by the German civilian population. At Saarbrücken for instance, not a single German family remains, while hundreds have fled from Mulhausen and Colmar.

The hospitals everywhere are filled with German wounded while French nurses treated them with too much kindness, regardless of the risk they ran in doing so.

Among the patients, my informant tells me, were a great many German officers, who, without being actually wounded, were greatly in need of rest. Cases of nervous depression and acute insanity were very prevalent among German officers, who have been long exposed to the fire of the French "seventy-fives."

The German papers after the first battle near the Mazurian lakes published long descriptions of how thousands of Russian soldiers were drowned in the lakes. Now comes a German professor, Dr. Buch, and tells us that these reports were entirely without any foundation.

In a recent issue of the "Schlesische Zeitung" the professor calls attention to the fact that in the region of Tannenberg where the battle was fought, there are no lakes whatever. The few ponds of the district are absolutely dry except for a few months in the winter, and even then it would be very difficult to drown in them unless you were very determined to commit suicide, the depth of the water never exceeding five feet.
